STA APPOINTS NEW TRAINING MANAGER

REGINA, Sask. – Effective Jan. 1, 2010, Glen Morrison has been appointed Training Manager of Commercial Truck Services (CTS), a division of the Saskatchewan Trucking Association (STA).

In his new capacity Mr. Morrison will be responsible for all aspects of CTS training programs, as well as the division's heavy equipment operator training program.

In making the announcement, STA Executive Director Al Rosseker, cited Mr. Morrison's extensive business and transportation background as key attributes that will strengthen the STA's Group of Companies.

"Glen's entrepreneurial spirit and knowledge of the transportation industry will greatly enhance the STA's efforts in raising training and safety standards for large trucks and heavy equipment. His addition to our senior management team will result in a more process-oriented approach to training, customer relations, quality assurance and business development," Mr. Rosseker noted.

Mr. Morrison began with the STA in early 2006 and has handled various assignments including Class 1A and 3A driver instruction in classroom and in-cab; hours of service; professional driver improvement; load securement; air brake; transportation of dangerous goods; and long combination – energy efficient - vehicles. He is also proficient in curriculum and teaching methodologies, scheduling, and coaching/mentoring. Prior to joining the STA, Mr. Morrison achieved Master Driver status in the truck transport industry where he also had training responsibilities.

He is also well-versed in the agricultural sector having owned ag-based businesses that contributed to his acumen in general business operations and logistics; budgets and finance; forecasting and planning; sales and service. Mr. Morrison holds a diploma in agriculture from the University of Saskatchewan.

Established in 1937, the STA is a not-for-profit trade association advancing the truck transport industry in Saskatchewan through member services that include training, safety initiatives, government relations, policy formulation, education, insurance and health benefits plans. The association is also represented on the board of directors of the Canadian Trucking Alliance, an affiliation of provincial truck transport associations.
